The next decade holds both promise and challenges for Queensland and this Region.

As Queensland prepares to host the Brisbane 2032 Olympic & Paralympic Games, regional Council CEOs – Ms Emma Thomas, CEO Sunshine Coast Council and Mr Scott Waters, CEO Noosa Council – come together on Monday 29 August to discuss their strategies to manage and balance economic and population growth with liveability expectations in the next decade and beyond.

At a time when rising costs, pressure on inflation, and wide-spread labour shortages are impacting business and investor confidence, the region needs astute planning by councils and government as well as meaningful industry collaboration to maintain sustainable regional growth. We need to manage the strategic challenges together, maintain progress toward diversifying the regional economy, deliver the potential of digital transformation, create quality regional jobs, and secure the level of private sector investment that will be required.
